DETAILED ACTION

Notice to Applicant

1. This communication is in response to the amendment filed 2/25/08. Claims 66, 68, and 69 have been amended. Claims 1-65, 67, and 70-79 are cancelled. Claims 66, 68, and 69 remain pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 66 and 69 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fu et al. (4,803,625) in view of Madsen et al. (5,853,377).

(A) Referring to claim 66, Fu discloses a device for acquiring data comprising (abstract of Fu):

an input device for acquiring and transmitting biological data of an individual at different points in time over an extended time frame (col. 5, line 53 – col. 6, line 12 and col. 3, lines 23-27 of Fu);

a processor, said processor receiving the biological data of the individual from the input device (Fig. 2 and col. 5, line 53 – col. 6, line 12 of Fu); and a memory connected to the processor and storing a program for controlling operation of the processor (abstract and Fig. 2 of Fu); said processor operative with the program in the memory to receive the biological data of the individual and to analyze the biological data, and said biological data being compared by the processor to constantly updated medical information transmitted to the processor to determine if the biological data received is of a predetermined degree of a life-threat to the individual, the processor providing a warning of the predetermined degree of threat to life determined by the comparison performed by the processor (Fig. 10-12, abstract, and col. 3, lines 46-62 of Fu).

Fu does not expressly disclose a communication link to the individual to send one of different levels of medical emergency warning to the individual.

Madsen discloses a communication link to the individual to send one of different levels of medical emergency warning to the individual (abstract and col. 4, lines 17-32 of Madsen).

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to combine the aforementioned features of Madsen within Fu. The motivation for doing so would have been for the patient to be immediately notified of the status of his health (abstract of Madsen).

(B) Referring to claim 69, Fu discloses wherein the input device includes a blood pressure measuring device (col. 7, lines 13-16 of Fu).

Insofar as the claim recites "one of," it is immaterial whether or not the other elements are also disclosed.

Art Unit: 3626

4. Claim 68 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fu et al. (4,803,625) in view of Madsen et al. (5,853,377), and further in view of Coli et al. (6,018,713).

(A) Referring to claim 68, Fu and Madsen do not expressly disclose wherein the input device transmits data to a distributed computer network.

Coli discloses wherein the input device transmits data to a distributed computer network (see col. 9, lines 4-40 of Coli).

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to combine the aforementioned feature of Coli within Fu and Madsen. The motivation for doing so would have been to provide aggregated data across multiple sources (col. 18, lines 28-36 of Coli).

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 66, 68, and 69 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

Art Unit: 3626

In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
